

Top 10 Tips for Story Collectors

If you are planning to be a Story Collector in our Story Quest Game, here are a few tips and ideas:

1. Make sure you have registered your details with us. We will need an email address so we can send out our daily updates.
2. If you already have someone in mind who you intend to contact, please make sure you have confirmed they are happy for you to contact them and let us know - otherwise, our team will try to match you with someone who is looking for a partner in the game.
3. Every day or so, we will release a new topic to you which we hope you will use as a conversation starter with your Story Teller(s). You will need to arrange the best time and method to contact them.
4. If you are speaking by phone, then we hope you will be able to have a chat about the topic. We would not expect storytellers to necessarily answer the question straight away as they may probably want to think about their answer. Maybe start to explore a few ideas with them. We anticipate that people will probably want to answer the question when you speak the following day!
5. We hope that storytellers will script their stories and record their memories.
6. If your storyteller wants you to record their story, then there are a few ways you can do this ranging from writing notes to recording their voice - check out other other helpsheet for more information.
7. If you feel uncomfortable or upset by any of the questions, then don't feel that you have to ask it. Equally, if the storyteller feels uncomfortable answering, then skip to another question, or revisit a previous one. There will be plenty of other questions and you may want to discuss making up your own.
8. Don't forget to use the opportunity to talk about other matters too. Part of the aim of this game is for people to have the opportunity to talk. Enjoy the conversation and use it to also check up on their well-being. If you have any concerns, please let us know.
9. Please let the team at Story Quest how you are getting on and if you have any other tricks and tips to share that could help others. It maybe that you also have ideas for your own questions!
10. At the end of this Quest, we hope you will and your storyteller will have supported each other and hopefully created a wonderful legacy.
